The Australian Council for Nursing (ACN) is a community-based organisation that represents nurses and midwives. The council's mission is to promote the profession of nursing and midwifery in Australia and to advocate for the rights and interests of nurses and midwives in the community. The ACN is a non-profit organisation that relies on membership fees and donations to fund its activities.